MODEM

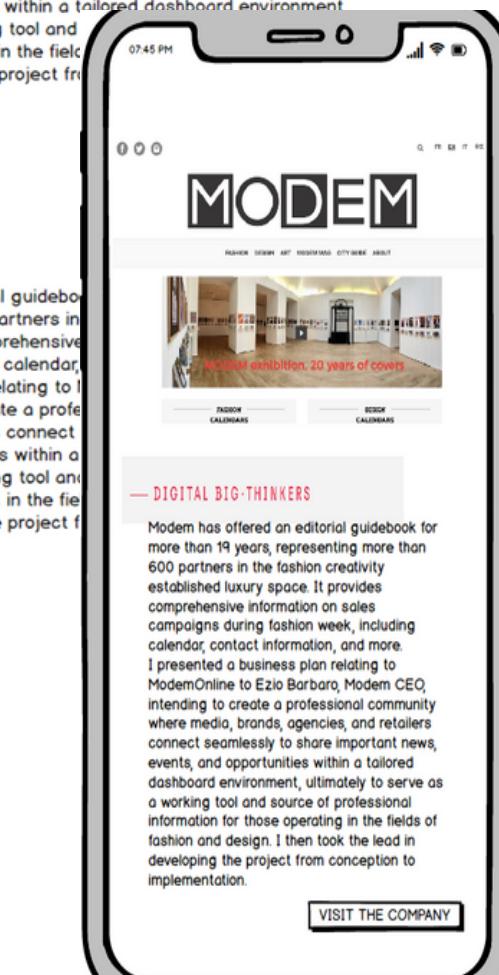

LUISAVIAROMA

Modem has offered an editorial guidebook for more than 19 years, representing more than 600 partners in the fashion creativity established luxury space. It provides comprehensive information on sales campaigns during fashion week, including calendar, contact information, and more. I presented a business plan relating to ModemOnline to Ezio Barbaro, Modem CEO, intending to create a professional community where media, brands, agencies, and retailers connect seamlessly to share important news, events, and opportunities within a tailored dashboard environment, ultimately to serve as a working tool and source of professional information for those operating in the fields of fashion and design. I then took the lead in developing the project from conception to implementation.

ABOUT

During my first job in Milan,
I delved into the wholesale business world.

There, I first started to work on the business plan for a B2B platform MODEMTOOL.

I continued to develop the project, eventually proposing it to MODEM and involving them directly.

This gave me the chance to develop the project on my own and manage a team.

I became extremely confident presenting and communicating the strategic plan and building the business plan.

But I also felt for the first time the gap between my experience and my ambitions.

Now, I would like to avail myself of my knowledge and experience in Europe, having always had one foot in Asia. I seek new
